"Lindy" Amazes Scientists With Sense of Direction

Old Navigators Wonder How
Charlie Found His Way Over
Trackless Deep

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 27—Charlie Lindbergh couldn't explain of any lack of popular appreciation of his human qualities, to have become the first non-stop transatlantic flier in history.

Courage, endurance, aviator's skill, raised to the fifth power—all these are recognized in him generally enough.

But maybe even Lindbergh isn't aware of something which seems to scientists, and especially to experienced navigators, coming in his performance—something hinting at an instinct in him that other human beings don't possess, or not many others, at any rate; or, if others do possess it, something that's latent in them as yet, something they haven't discovered in themselves.

Lindbergh evidently has discovered in himself, but the scientists doubt if he knows it, consciously. His flight, just as a flight is regarded by experts as a remarkable feat of physical and mental endurance, but nothing to be puzzled over in its audacity.

What stumps old navigators is that they couldn't do it themselves. Figure out how Charlie found a way across the trackless deep to a spot where he wanted to land.

HE had a compass, you

And that's all he had.

Now a compass is all right, but a direction, but that's as far as it goes. The compass, which shows a port and holds a course dead ahead, is a guide, but it doesn't tell you where you are, or what the current is, or if others do possess it, something that's latent in them as yet, something they haven't discovered in themselves.

Lindbergh evidently has discovered

also Lindbergh couldn't steer dead ahead, but had to swing far to the northward. His compass couldn't tell him when he'd swung far enough.

A sailor, eastward bound from New York in a surface craft relatively as late as an aeroplane, with only a compass and compelled to feel most of the way, like Lindbergh, through thick weather, would consider he'd done well to hit Europe anywhere between Newfoundland and Gibraltar.

Yet Lindbergh flew straight as a line from New York to Paris and appeared to have been more than three days off his course the whole way.

A NAVIGATOR calls it "dead reckoning"—a system he has to depend on when clouds hide sun and stars, but a system he dislikes and fears, a system he's sent many a good sailor spinning on the rocks.

Then aviation's quite a different thing from land flying, with no compass, with no spread out below, to guess the road.

A flight never was dreamed of without a skilled navigator, one with all the paraphernalia of science, to point the way, to radio, landing gear, nearly all of it to be sure, but never any navigation's able.

ADMIRAL MOFFETT, head of naval aviation, is quoted to the effect that he's almost prepared to believe Lindbergh could take that compass, fly over to the North Pole and land right on the pole.

Only, of course, Charlie couldn't prove he'd been to the North Pole, as he can prove by numerous witnesses in Paris that he landed there.

Navy navigators are mighty anxious to ask him how he did it, but they don't believe he can tell. "We think he did it the same way the cat comes back," as one of them expressed it. "The cat does it all right, all right, but you never find out how."

WARSHIP NELSON NOW READY FOR OFFICIAL TRIAL

One of World's Heaviest Battleships Is Completed for Britain

LONDON, May 27—One of the heaviest and most powerful fighting vessels in the world, the British battleship Nelson, which has been under construction for four years, has been completed by the Royal Dockyard at Portsmouth, and is being turned up for her first official sea trials.

The Nelson and her sister ship Rodney (now building) are claimed to be the largest and greatest battleships yet built. With an armament of fifteen guns, including nine sixteen inch guns, they are certainly the most heavily armed battleships in the world.

The heavy guns of the Nelson are carried in triple turrets forward, each mounting three sixteen inch guns. Amidships, the usual conning tower has been replaced by a huge armored structure. The vessel has a displacement of 25,000 tons.

The Nelson and the Rodney are the two battleships which Great Britain was authorized to construct under the Washington Treaty of naval limitation. They are the only battleships allowed to be built by Great Britain since the United States and Japan until 1921, when Great Britain may lay down two to replace four obsolete vessels.

The concentration of the main armament forward in the Nelson and Rodney is the outcome of experiments carried out by the British Admiralty in 1921. The great tower, which displaces the old conning tower, contains within its walls cabins, direction and observation stations, for which accommodation was formerly found in bridges and tilted funnels.

The annual cost of upkeep of this type of vessel is officially stated to be nearly two million dollars. The length of the water line of each of the two vessels is 702 feet, beam 100 feet, and mean draught is 30 feet. The armor, it is understood, is concentrated over the guns and magazines in the forepart of the ship. In this particular the vessels are claimed to have the longest foredeck of any vessel in the world.

and best ambassador." "Divine Inspiration "The flight of this young man to fly across the Atlantic came as a divine inspiration," said Ambassador Herdick, and Lindbergh was swept with joyful bluntness. "It was not inspired by the government but conceived in his own heart and brain at a time when it could do most good." Sen. Lazar Weiler paid high tribute to Lindbergh and thanked him for his brief speech. The senator recalled that Orville Wright once said that "birds fly and don't talk," and remarked that Lindbergh is "a bird who flies and also speaks."

Grinning with satisfaction, Lindbergh came to earth here today full of excitement over the beauties of Paris, having completed an hour and a half flight over the city in the early hours of the morning—his first flight since he turned off the motor in "The Spirit of St. Louis" at the end of his epochal flight across the Atlantic.

Astonishes Veterans Lindbergh was unembarrassed and at ease for the first time since he had arrived here, for he had enjoyed zooming and side-slipping and looping over Paris—and this is his idea of the way to see a town.

The young American astonished veteran aviators at Le Bourget by his daring, for he was flying a strange plane—a "Niropet"—which he had never seen before, but his antics in the clouds were out of sheer joy and certainly could not be considered for the benefit of the public, for the flight was made so early that Paris had hardly awakened and Lindbergh was back on the ground about the time most Frenchmen were beginning to consider Petit Dejeuner.

Daily Proverb—"A goose-quill is more dangerous than a lion's paw."

Many men are said to hesitate about taking to knickerbockers because of defects in their legs. Why should they worry on that score? The girls don't.

Anybody who has ever seen one of them at sea will naturally wonder what the government has against our most famous aviator which impelled it to offer to bring him back home in a destroyer.

A news story from Miami, Florida, says a hundred square miles of the Everglades have been burned. The correspondent probably meant boiled.

Paper dollars may last only seven or eight months, as the government tells us, but the most of those we see, these days, impress us with the view that they have made as awful lot of acquaintances in a decidedly limited time.

"I'd like to see," observed the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today, "any member of the American Medical association try to force liquor on me."

Let us hope that Captain Lindbergh will exercise a bit more caution in taking to the sea of matrimony than he exhibited in plunging into the air. About the worst thing that could happen to the young man would be to get the wrong kind of a wife.

Professor John Erskine says that "if one-half the energy that is spent in censoring bad books were directed toward praising good books, there would be no room for the bad." John, aren't you out on the limb you are sawing from the tree?

A cable tells us that soviet officials in London are packing up to get out of Britain. They must have begun to suspect that they are not wholly welcome.

The editor of the Ohio State Journal voices regret that summer is just around the corner to mark the temporary demise of the grate fire, which strikes us as a superb illustration of crossing the bridge quite a spell before getting to it.

At times the public gets the benefit of luck's breaks. In this connection, it may be said that a special session of congress is now deemed highly improbable.

"Children," says the president of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, "don't want their mothers to look as young as they do." She may take it from us that the danger of displeasing children in this particular way is absolutely negligible.

A contributor to the New York Times suggests Newton D. Baker as the Democratic nominee for the presidency. Newton is a bright young man, all right, but doesn't he suffer an occasional twinge of pacifism?

It develops that Aviator Lindbergh, before starting on his New York-Paris flight, bought a return ticket from the White Star line. He must have had a pretty fair notion that he was going to land on the other side of the Atlantic.

With a raccoon, a couple of dogs, two lion cubs, the G. O. P. elephant and the senate grey wolves already on his hands, the president has been presented a baby hippopotamus. Can it be that Mr. Coolidge's friends suspect him of harboring a desire to start a zoo?

Marion Is Doubly Honored.

The people of Marion would feel honored to have the Ohio Daughters of the American Revolution come to this, their city, at any time; they feel doubly honored that the visitors of today come to do honor to the memory of him who was Marion's most distinguished son.

As the years pass since that to us never-to-be-forgotten night when Warren G. Harding fell into that "dreamless sleep which kisses down his eyelids still," the memory of the man who held the honor and esteem of the people of the United States as their president, but who was most esteemed here by the people of his home town as their friend and fellow-citizen, grows dearer. The passing years have served but to call to mind the many sterling traits, the almost countless considerate acts, the many kindly words carrying faith and encouragement, which endeared him to our people, but which, in the tragedy of that night of death, were overlooked and for the time-being forgotten in the grief that his passing brought.

That the Ohio Daughters of the American Revolution should come today to plant an American elm on the Memorial site as a living emblem of the esteem in which they hold the memory of him who was their president, but above all also as a patriotic American, touches the heartstrings of those who loved him in an ascertainable way. Honoring his memory as highly as we of Marion do, this manifestation of the honor and esteem in which others hold him in memory serves but to intensify the security of the place he in death holds in the innermost recesses of our hearts.

A Blow to Soviet Russia.

The position of the United States government in refusing to recognize soviet Russia, enunciated by Secretary of State Hughes and closely adhered to by Secretary of State Kellogg, despite all the protestations of that class of American citizens who place the interests of other governments no matter how little entitled to confidence and trust, above those of their own, has been fully justified, if justification were needed, by the experience of Great Britain, which has at least sickened of the underhand dealings and plottings of the bolsheviks and announced the breaking-off of diplomatic relations.

In announcing the determination of the British ministry to sever all diplomatic relations with Moscow, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, after reading over documentary evidence of the soviet international network of bolshevik plots in the United States, Canada and New Zealand as well as in England, said:

"In the face of these breaches of the trade agreement and international comity, his majesty's government has shown patience and forbearance which is probably without parallel. As late as February we renewed in the most solemn form the protest and warnings. It is clear that neither had any effect."

"Diplomatic relations when thus deliberately and systematically abused are in themselves a danger to peace, and his majesty's government therefore has decided that unless the house expresses disapproval on Thursday, the government will terminate the trade agreement, require the withdrawal of the trade delegation and soviet mission from London, and recall the British mission from Moscow."

The British minister made very plain his refusal to differentiate between the acts of the Third Internationale and those of the Russian government, showing by documentary evidence that they were one and the same. "The soviet government itself can not escape the responsibility for the action of the trade delegation and the abuse of the facilities afforded it," the prime minister continued, "but the matter does not rest there, because it is difficult to believe that, while one organ of the soviet government was breaking its solemn undertaking, the soviet mission and soviet government did not pass on these proceedings."

Our government wisely refrained from entering into diplomatic relations with Russia, but the wisdom of its course in permitting the same kind of trading companies as the Arco, Limited, the raid upon which resulted in much of the evidence of Russian duplicity being discovered, to operate in this country without restriction is to be questioned.

Having had the backbone to resist the pressure brought to bear upon it to give recognition to Russia, the administration should have proceeded to drive the two big Russian trading companies doing business in New York out of our domain. Perhaps it may, now that it has the encouragement offered by the course of Great Britain and by Canada with indications of similar action on the part of France.

In any event, a heavy blow has been dealt to the Russian despots whose hopes for world recognition are blasted by the attitude of the English-speaking world in arraying itself against their fond dream of world revolution. Discredited by its first friend, the despoilers of Russia may soon have forced upon them the fact that the people of Russia can no longer be made their dupes. Censorship in Russia is rigid, but the reputation of her bolshevik government by Great Britain is sure to become known throughout her great domain.

As one of the true aristocrats of the land, our idea of making the punishment fit the crime would be to sentence traffic light violators to put in two hours daily for thirty days or such a matter passing from one side of the street to the other at corners allegedly guarded by traffic lights.

"Whenever I hear a man blowing about running things about his house," remarked the fellow who lives next door on the way down town this morning, "I assume that he has been wiring for an electric bell or doing some other such job as that."

Young Lindbergh, who has further endeared himself to the French people by turning over the benefit of the families of French aviators who have lost their lives a gift of 150,000 francs made to him and promised to delay his departure home that he may take part in a gala charity performance arranged for June 10 of the receipts of which are to go to the families of Nungesser and Goll, when asked why his first words after landing in France were "I am Charles Lindbergh" responded "I was afraid they might think I was somebody else." Was there ever another like him?

Vagrant Verse.

THE HERO IN OLD AGE.

When he is an old, old man,
And silence dwells more readily than speech
Upon his lips,
This one and that may point him out, and say,
"He is the one that made
New York to Paris, all alone!" And he Thinks that it seems but yesterday: the dawn,
The banner in the mist, the anxious crowd,
The steel-hoofed rain, the grimy-faced, gray ghost
Filling the tanks, the cockpit gaping there,
Then the familiar roar,
The dull vibration, and the take-off, when
The trees rushed at him for a second: no
On through the cool, wet air and up the coast
Where far below men slept, or stirred uneasily,
Now out to the open sea. Alone, alone!
His nicked instruments blinked at him like eyes.

Weariness smothered him like fog. There was a ship:
He thought of home, of wires cleared to tell
Of how he fared; of streets alive with crowds;
Piles of fresh papers, and his name in black
And staring print.
Then a long nightmare of fatigue, blocked off
in times

Of sighted land and unfamiliar coasts.
The post alarm, in sight, a sudden spurt
Of energy, his second breath, and he Was there at last. The rest was all confused.
Another trail marked for the feet of time:
And underneath it all

Was something that can not be told in words:
Unconquerable courage and indomitable will
Fused to a flame that drove one nearly mad
With the sheer ecstasy of victory. . . . Ah, well!
That was a long, long time ago, and now
The whistled "fare planes" cross every day,
And he sits here, and muses now and then,
Thinking the world is old.

—Eleanor Almeta Claiborne.

Worry Causes Bad Teeth?

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
One of the ailments of middle age is pyorrhea. This is the disease which attacks the gums, resulting in ulceration and pus formation. It is followed by loosening of the teeth and ultimately by the necessity of extracting them.

An eminent German dentist has said recently, "It may sound foolish to laymen, but there is no doubt a broken heart may cause pyorrhea and the subsequent loss of teeth. Worries increase tartar and cause the saliva glands to function irregularly, leading to increased deposits of tartar. A person gritting or grinding his teeth in his sleep, in his struggle with fate, loosens his teeth and becomes a victim of pyorrhea."

There can be no doubt, this dentist states, "that under strain of emotion and worry tartar settles on teeth much more rapidly than under normal conditions."

If your hair is inclined to be oily, you will observe that, no matter how frequently you scrub it, it grows oily very quickly if you are worried. Hard mental effort will produce the same effect.

Modern civilization has produced many conditions which are violative of the highest welfare of the human family. The pressure of business, the high cost of living, the sharp competition of life, the struggle for place—all these things cause worry, a sense of anxiety, and even a state of mind verging on terror.

The digestion is upset because the nerves controlling the circulation and muscular structures are "jumpy" and disturbed in function. The intestinal action is disturbed. The brain and nervous system are upset. The glands operate irregularly. The whole system is deranged.

Lowered resistance is the inevitable result of such undermining of the health. Serious results must be expected. It is quite reasonable, as I see it, that the teeth and gums should share in the general breakdown of physical efficiency.

Good teeth, as indeed good eyes and ears and heart and blood vessels and liver and kidneys, are dependent on lack of worry and plenty of restful sleep. Worry is deadly to vigor and usefulness.

Editorial Comment.

ETHER LANES ACROSS THE SKY.

Lindbergh was lucky in his winds. The machine of a cross breeze, with its resulting side-wind drift, might have cost him his success, if not his life. The problem of safe flight across the ocean reduces to that of sure and easy navigation. These opinions, expressed to the Herald Tribune by no less an authority than Mr. Orville Wright, deserve earnest attention. There was a time in human history when the fact that oceans existed on earth helped human commerce, as it still true for the transport of heavy freight. Words can now be carried electrically, but for passengers and fast freight the oceans have come to be a considerable barrier rather than a highway. The way past this obstacle is over it. Transatlantic mails by air would be perhaps the greatest service which aircraft could now offer the commercial world. Captain Lindbergh has blazed the way, but the practical dangers which Mr. Wright foresees must still be faced.

Navigation on the surface of the oceans is little changed in its essentials since the Chinese junk first used the magnetic compass and the Maori invented the sextant in the form of their "magic calabash." It is far from certain that these ancient ways of pathfinders across the water surface will serve the needs of argument that fly. The new radio methods which Mr. Wright mentions are both more interesting and more promising.

There has been perfect within the last two years what is called the radio beam. By this method the radio waves are dispatched mainly in a chosen direction from the broadcasting station instead of being scattered in all directions toward the horizon. Beam stations in England now transmit radio messages regularly to Canada and to Australia. Unfortunately, these beams are not precise enough to serve as guides for aircraft. They spread too widely, like the light beam from a poorly focussed searchlight. It is not beyond the present resources of radio engineering to improve this. At the last meeting of the New York Electrical society, Dr. Phillips Thomas, of the Westinghouse company, described his hope of producing narrow beams of radio waves so large in diameter that the beam of a searchlight. There is no reason why such beams, made purposely a little broader than this, might not be directed between Newfoundland and Ireland to serve as well marked ether lanes for fliers. The curvature of the earth would be no obstacle, for the beam could be projected as a vertical slice, rather than a cylindrical beam, and the nature of the atmosphere would hold such a slice of radio waves to the same curvature as that of the globe. The liaison between radio and aircraft seems not to have been as perfect recently as it might be. It is to be hoped that Mr. Wright's remarks will justify it.—New York Herald Tribune.

GOVERNMENT ON WHEELS COSTLY.

Senator Miller, of Texas, declares that there is too much "government on wheels" in his state. He protests against the amount, estimated at $1,000,000, that it will take to pay the traveling expenses of the state government for the first two years. The Texas legislature last week appropriated $210,700 for this purpose. But the appropriation does not include the traveling expenses of state ratifiers or of several departments, whose expenditures for travel are lumped with miscellaneous items, and in some cases, paid from fees.

Doubtless the cost of government on wheels is bound to be high when almost everything else is moving on the wheels of automobiles, buses or railroads. A strictly pedestrian government never was feasible, and it certainly is not now when motor traffic is so thick that much state revenue is derived from gasoline taxes. Besides, in a state so large as Texas, the government's transportation costs are necessarily higher than they would be, for instance, in Rhode Island.

Yet $1,000,000 does seem a lot of money to pay in two years for the traveling expenses of state officials and employees. It may be that entirely too much has been consumed at state expense, and, from the logical place to begin a movement for economy in government is in the gasoline tank. Less government on wheels might have a perceptible effect in relieving traffic congestion and prevent the sort of government from being shifted to the driver's seat.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DECEPTIVE MOTOR CARS.

In bringing a manslaughter charge against the driver of a truck that had killed a pedestrian, a Minnesota coroner's jury brought out the fact that the truck was not equipped with a horn and was entirely without brakes. Doubtless there are many motor vehicles on Minnesota highways which, if not equally defective in safety equipment, are at least lacking in adjustment for complete control by the driver, and are so menacing to public safety.

There is a flaw in legal regulation of motor traffic. Deceptive cars rush about, potentially perilous to human life and threatening damage to other vehicles. Other lame motor vehicles drag along, slowing up traffic and increasing congestion with their attendant perils. And we let them do it.

Pennsylvania has in its new motor code a provision that the secretary of highways may "suspend the registration of any vehicle deemed unsafe or unfit to be operated, or not equipped as required by law."

Apparently the Minnesota legislature overlooked a bet, when it framed the new traffic code.—Missneapolis Journal.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Washington newspaper correspondents are keen judges of human nature. They soon come to know men in public life by their first and middle names. They learn to distinguish public officials who just "set by" from those who know what they are talking about.

"When you go to So-and-So's afternoon conference," said a capital correspondent recently, naming a cabinet member, "you listen. He refers to no papers. He fumbles with no notes. He expresses few opinions and he hazards no guesses. He tells you."

You can know what you are talking about if you are willing to pay the price. The price is the price of toil, sometimes dull and unrelenting, sometimes drudgery. There is not enough genius to go around. You can't count on that. Mastery of your subject does not come from sudden insight. Nothing but hard work will put you in the class of those few men who know what they are talking about.

Some time ago the newspapers told the story of a Frenchman and his wife who killed themselves on the grave of their son. A brief note told the story. "We have nothing to live for," it said.

Nothing to live for? Everything to live for. A whole world full of things to live for. An immortal soul to live for and an eternity to work in.

Had this man and woman a little vision wherewith to see, they would have found a thousand hungry, despairing souls in their native France. Orphaned children called to them but they did not hear. A hundred causes poured out their eloquent calls for service, and a hundred institutions begged their work and service, but they did not hear. They thought they had nothing to live for because they had been living only for themselves and their son. They lived lives dedicated to self and their immediate possessions. In due self and their possessions failed them.

It has been demonstrated that we have within us layers of energy we rarely tap. We work while either at physical or mental effort and become tired. Our impulse is to give way to fatigue. We give up and stop work. If we have the courage to go on—and are in good health—we will break through into a new layer of energy. We can go on with renewed vitality and fresh sense of well-being. We must have faith in our second wind.

In Paris, the Gay.

BY G. O. NORTHER.

Paris, May 27—May is the favored month in Paris. Boulevard chestnut trees washed by April showers burst into fragrant blossoms. The city seems summitted by a glow of burnished gold. Life becomes suddenly an affair of laughter and love.

The trees, buildings and even the clouds look fresh and gay. The populace moves out from behind grilles and shrouded waiters sit in the sunshine. Heavy silk banners of the octagonal corner binn become aflame with banners announcing the famous Ratellini clowns are back in town.

Starry-eyed lovers are reading poetry on benches along the tanbark paths. These lay and incredibly informed old men in shoulder-capes keep out to browse among old books and old prints along the open book stalls of the quai. Fishermen stalk immovable and dreaming for hours along the stone-arched waters of the Seine.

The Seine fishermen are indicative of French patience. Not one in a thousand ever has so much as a nibble. Fishing is merely the French method of falling into a silent ecstasy of contemplation. On the grand boulevards a riot of life and color. Chinese in every block selling dazzling pearls.

An elephantine man in white apron and coat trudges along with a basket stop his belt cap containing a paper mache rooster. He is a walking ad for the culinary wonders of a roisserie. Shawled violet sellers, holding babies placidly sucking their thumbs, dart out to taxis stopping at the curbs.

An incredibly hairy and gnome-like beggar with distorted brain and chuckling laugh falls to the gutter in a feigned fit. Curb merchants, like those drawn by Hogarth's undulating pencil, are every few steps, wheezing and seething. Gaunt philosophers harangue at the corners.

In the slow-moving boulevard throngs are also the dapper and frivolous dandies, the over-perfumed ladies with sly winks, waddling housewives with baskets, English swells eyeing the world slooily through monocles. Senseless soldiers with aching grins, whispering peep show cicerones, brawny Tanned-shirt and peasants clumping along in sabots.

The bicycle is the favorite method of mechanical travel in Paris. Rich and poor use it as a healthful manner in transportation. Every park has its cycle path, invariably swarming with riders. The cyclist is supreme on the roadway. Taxis, autos and carriages must dodge him. A cyclist is almost a deity in Paris. The national bicycle crowd races in France excite as much interest as our championship baseball games. Priests ride ladies' safety bicycles to protect their doming robes.

Paris offers excellent evidence that America has many foolish traffic laws. There is no speed limit here. There is a glass-and-iron consideration in heavy traffic. Every driver comes somewhat a captain of his fate. If he wants to turn around in the middle of the block and go the other way, he does so. Accidents are rare and a fatality is almost unknown. The trick is in the penalties. If a car strikes another car, each is equally guilty and the penalty is swift, certain and severe. Excuses do not go.

Cantering along the bridge path in the Bois this afternoon were the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George—the latter in the lead and obviously intent on being seen by the curious. Wales' horse seemed a bit fractious and he had all he could do to rein him in. He looked scared to me, but with so many horses jumping out from under him, who wouldn't be? Had I been in his saddle I would have been yelling, "Stop him!"

France does not genuflect to royalty as much as America. Kings, princes and dukes are daily events and, too, France has too many reminders of royalty and the Red Terror.

The most lasting impression I have of Paris this trip is a scalded, robed and turbaned man, walking along Avenue Matignon, when, "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby!" Copyright 1927.

NORTIMER FLEISHACKER.

Nortimer Fleishacker was born at St. Francisco, August 22, 1886. He is the son of a number of companies and is officer and director in many corporations in California and other western states. In addition to holding the vice presidency of the Anglo and London Paris National, Fleishacker serves as first vice-president in labor troubles arising during the World War and also as head of an exemption board. He is a regent of the University of California.

Speaking of present-day conditions in Europe, Mr. Fleishacker said: "All Europe is unsettled. There are a thousand different cross currents which no one can analyze. How will it all finally crystallize? We should be prepared for any situation. Strength is important at this time. It is a mistake to scrap any of our ships. We should have a navy as strong and so powerful that any nation would know it would be ridiculous to attack us. If you must see Europe, see Italy first. It is the greatest political and economic phenomenon in the world today."

machine was being driven by omerlot, son of William H. her mother, Mrs. Ellen L. Mather, who Somerlot and the accident was due to carelessness and negligence on the part of the driver, Emerson alleges in his petition. He asserts that the son was operating the car with his father's knowledge and consent and that as a consequence the father is liable for damages.

Enroute to Indiana
Cecil Somerlot and Mrs. Cowgill were enroute from Marion to Angola, Ind., to bring Somerlot's father back to this city when the accident occurred about 6 o'clock the morning of the date given in the petition. Mrs. Cowgill lived only about 40 minutes after the crash. Somerlot was badly injured but recovered after having been taken to a hospital in Lima.

The machine, a Dodge coupe, was equipped with old and defective brakes, the petition states. Although aware that the braking device was in poor condition, Somerlot approached the railway crossing at a speed of about 20 miles an hour and failed to exercise caution in spite of Mrs. Cowgill's warnings, her administrator alleges.

The petition says that Mrs. Cowgill was 32 years of age at the time of her death and had been earning $150 a month, which enabled her to provide for her mother, Mrs. Ellen L. Mather, who was wholly dependent upon the daughter for support.

Home in Richmond
Mrs. Cowgill's home was in Richmond, the petition states. The address of her administrator, Logan Emerson, is R. F. D. No. 1, Richmond. Emerson was appointed administrator on Aug. 12, 1926.

The suit was filed through the law firm of Osborn & Phillips of Youngstown.

Sues for $100
The National Cash Register Co. of Dayton filed suit in the court of common pleas here yesterday against John W. McClure, asking judgment for $100 which is alleged to be the balance due on a $280 note given by McClure in the purchase of a cash register. The petition asks that the note be foreclosed, the cash register sold under court order and the proceeds applied on payment of the note.

RADIO PROTESTS MAY GO TO SUPREME COURT

Entire Summer Likely to Be Taken Up With Complaints
Over Allocations

Washington, May 27.—War to the radio—probably to the United States Supreme Court—started today for possession of the choicest radio wave channels.

With the opening of public hearings before the federal radio commission, through which station WJAZ, Zenith Radio Corporation of Chicago, hopes to establish a claim to a better frequency than was granted, will start a long series of demands from broadcast in many sections of the United States for more desirable allocations. Most of the broadcasters are fighting to get out of the high frequencies or low wave lengths. Three other hearings involving New York and Newark, N. J., stations have been set for next week.

As the result of letters to all station owners from Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, chairman of the commission, insisting that they have not been granted satisfactory frequencies, it appeared that the remainder of the summer would be taken up with these complaints.

Commissioner H. A. Rogers declared that the commission has changed from an executive to a judicial body.

Bellows also are not to be anticipated attacks against the constitutionality of the new radio law by the federal courts, but added that he felt reasonably certain that the act will stand the test.

Farms managed by single women are to be exempt from taxation under a proposal made by the Ukrainian government.

If Youth But Knew

BY REV. JOHN ROACH STRATON,
Pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, New York

WHAT is success, you ask? On the human side, it means reaching the goal of our endeavors. To be true success this must come not through reliance on "luck," or chance, or fortune, but by our own sturdy independence and courageous efforts. There is no discredit, either, in temporary failure. It is not a question of whether I fail. The main question is, AM I WILLING TO STAY DOWN? One may be "down" but he is never "out," unless he is WILLING to be counted out in the battle of life.

But there is a deeper side to the question of success. A well-rounded success means not only reaching the goal, but reaching the goal of useful SERVICE to GOD and man. The divine element cannot be left out, if a life is to be well-rounded, both in its individual happiness and in its contribution to greatness and to good.

Men have built up false standards of success. They think success is the acquisition of wealth and of education. Great wealth is often the enemy of success as I see it, and so-called "knowledge" is frequently of the sort which destroys faith in the divine and living God.

Bible Not Guide
People read the American Mercury instead of the Bible. They may keep a Bible on their desks, but it is as a literary reference book only, not as a guide to eternal life.

Let the young man sit down and read the Bible, particularly the 119th Psalm, which contains a complete plan, so to say, of right living, founded upon God's word.

Trust God. Pray for guidance, and guide. Have faith in God. They God.

ance will come. Be simple, be willing to learn, be as a little child who wishes to be led. God is a pitying, loving Father with more than the tender mercies of a father. He is a living, feeling, thinking omnipotent living God, not merely "a power animating the cosmos" or "influence" or "symbol of good."

I would say to Youth that it must have more than a clean code of ethics to live by. A pagan can have a clean code of ethics. It is not enough. We need a standard outside of and higher than human standards. We need belief in and dependence on God and God's teachings, not man and man's teachings, however excellent the latter may be.

Stays from Path
In my own youth I strayed far from the path of Christian virtue in which I was born and reared. I broke the commandments of God. I fell low.

But not too low for God's love and power to reach me. No man ever reaches that depth. Through the darkness of soul in which I was sunk, the Word reached me—preached in a sermon—and I listened. Faithfully at first, but with the steadily-growing realization that the only path is the path marked out by God's own teachings, His promises, His Truth.

Success and happiness can come only from a single faith in the living God and the following of His word. You may think there are many interpretations of His word. There is but one true interpretation. Study the Bible and the truth will be revealed by the Holy Spirit. Study it well, and you will find no contradictions, no confusions, no sophistries; only guidance, truth and comfort.

Men may write brilliant philosophies; they may compose impressive "rules for Success"; they may present scientific "findings" and creeds of "new thought." But these are all as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals. Success and happiness can only come from the possession of something which lifts a man above this earth, makes him immune to its hurts and failures, implants in him an unalterable faith in God's love and wisdom, and holds out to him the knowledge of everlasting life. ## SCOUTS TO HOLD FOUR TWO-WEEK CAMP PERIODS

Troops Will Enjoy Outings,
Starting June 20, at John A. Owens Camp

Boy Scouts of the Harding Area Council will enjoy four, two week periods of camping at Camp John A. Owens, five miles south of Marion, starting June 20, according to announcement made today by the camp committee.

Charles Isaly is chairman of that committee and other members are Dr. E. L. Brady, Elmer Schoenlaub, H. E. Neu, Harry Paxson and H. L. Pierce. Mr. Neu represents Kenton, Mr. Paxson is a resident of Bucyrus, and Dr. Pierce represents the Mt. Gilead and Morrow County scouts.

Each two-week period is set aside for various troops. The first period, June 20-July 3, is scheduled for Troops Nos. 1 and 10 of Marion, Troop No. 1 of Bucyrus, and Troop No. 7 of Prospect.

The second period, July 4-17, will be held for scouts of Troop No. 5 of this city, Troop No. 2 of Kenton, Troop No. 2 of Cardington, and Troop No. 8 of Morrow.

The third period, July 18-31, will accommodate scouts of Troops 3 and 4 of Marion, Troop No. 1 of Mt. Gilead, and Troop No. 2 of Bucyrus.

Final Period
The final scheduled period, starting Aug. 1 and continuing to Aug. 14, will benefit Troops Nos. 6, 9, and 2 of Marion and Troops Nos. 4 and 5 of Kenton. Any scout may go for more than one period and it is possible that an extra period will get under way Aug. 15 if necessary.

Scout Executive Walter C. Brown of this city, is camp director with Ward Ewalt of Pittsburgh, acting as his assistant. Other members of the camp staff will be Alvin Silverman of Cleveland, Frank Williams of Cleveland, Robert Ellis of Kenton and Harry Dorsey of Marion.

Camp John A. Owens is located in a well drained woodland of 16 acres with 40 acres of open land as the range. Part of a winding creek has been dammed and a pool filled there by an artesian well flowing 80,000 gallons of water a day.

A large screened mess hall and a headquarters lodge are provided and eight screened lodges large enough for eight scouts, are located in the most attractive spots in the woods.

The camp staff, chosen under the direction of the scout executive and camp committee, has been selected upon a basis of character, experience, and thorough knowledge of scouting. Ward Ewalt of Pittsburgh, senior at Ohio State, with 10 years of experience in boy leadership and scouting, will head the activity program and the swimming life guard. Alvin Silverman of Cleveland, will supervise the work in merit badges and have charge of campfires.

In Charge of Hiking
Frank Williams, life scout of Columbus, will have charge of work for first and second class scouts, and hiking. Robert Ellis, Eagle scout of Kenton, will have charge of the night games and swimming class for beginners. Harry Dorsey of this city will be camp clerk and bugler and have charge of Tenderfoot scouts.

Lycurgus Jervas, Star scout of Marion, will supervise the leather work and archery at camp.

The program is educational and is made to fit the boys of every scout rank, building health, character habits, and love of Nature.

The Popular Richman
Collegiate Model

Richman News

We were gratified to have 9360 people, by actual count, attend the opening of our big new Euclid Avenue store in Cleveland—and, at the same time, to see the usual crowd of buyers in the original store. Each month adds its quota to the hosts of men who see in Richman's Clothes "America's greatest value."

Established in 1879

Even though a man has been paying $50, or more, for his clothes, he is sure to be very favorably impressed with the inimitable style of Richman's Clothes—with the evident quality of the woollens, and the "clean cut" tailoring our stock-owning workers put into each garment.

These are the essentials in good clothes making—the things you look for when buying. What more do you find in high priced clothes?

If you, perhaps, still judge Richman's Clothes by what is ordinarily offered at the Richman price, we ask that you walk into a Richman store, tomorrow, and judge these clothes on merit, alone—subject them to any test you apply to higher priced clothes.

Come in tomorrow and select the clothes you need for your Memorial Day week-end vacation—a light weight gray, or tan—a cool dressy blue, with extra white flannels, perhaps—or a Richman Sport suit, with knickers, in colorful fabrics of sturdy weave, for the day at the country club. You'll find here just what you like and need for immediate wear.

LINDBERGH IN THREE YEARS ON FARM WORKED UP UNPRODUCTIVE PROPERTY UNTIL IT PAID FOR FLYING LESSONS

Artist depicts incidents in the life of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, New York-Paris air hero, when he "worked" the family farm at Little Falls, Minnesota.

(This is the third of 10 installments of the life story of Charles A. Lindbergh, most talked of man in the world today, as told by his mother, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, to Miss Bonita Witt.)

BY BONITA WITT
(Copyright, 1927, Central Press Co.)

IT was during the war years that Charles A. Lindbergh, hero of the New York-Paris monster flight, first got a taste of farming. His father, Charles A. Lindbergh, representative in congress from Minnesota, owned what around Little Falls, Minn., as known as a "fancy" farm, near the Mississippi river. Between seasons of congress, the elder Lindbergh, who was born in Sweden in 1860, found time to putter around the farm. The ground was stony and unproductive.

Charles was ready to begin his college course, but his parents believed he was too young to enter a university (he was about 16 or 17), and he was too young for military service. Young Lindbergh, restless and wanting to work, knowing scarcely anything about agriculture, decided he could put the farm on a paying basis.

For three years he "worked" the place and at the end of that time the farm was paying dividends for the first time. After he had proved his ability as a farmer, Charles decided he'd quit the soil as he had no intention of becoming a farmer.

Lindbergh passed a great deal of his time out-of-doors on the Minnesota farm, roaming among the great white pines which make that section of the state one of the beauty spots of America. He liked to wander along the banks of the upper Mississippi river alone with his dog. He usually had a lot of some sort to accompany him on his rambles through the woods.

During the hectic days when Lindbergh was overhauling his "ship" in New York preparatory to his trans-Atlantic flight, he found time to make friends with Patsy, an inquisitive cat which had wandered into his domain. He decided to take Patsy to Europe in the "Spirit of St. Louis" but later decided weather conditions might prove too severe for the animal. Patsy, therefore, remained in New York while "Lucky" made his dash to Paris.

In his earlier years Charles displayed considerable interest in boats. He built a craft himself and with his dog spent many an hour sailing the Mississippi.

Mrs. Lindbergh didn't object to her son's interest in boats, but she didn't share his enthusiasm for horses. She related: "He liked horses too well for my nerves, for he soon began to do 'thrilling' things. He became proficient in that. Then, the motorcycle and the automobile took his fancy."

When "Slim" finally decided to quit the farm he had earned $500 which he later used to pay for his first flying lesson.

Mrs. Lindbergh's blue eyes shine as she says: "You see, I don't want any of the glory of my boy's flight. I don't believe I'm entitled to it. He did it all himself. Since he has been old enough to earn his way, Charles never has taken a cent from me. Once when 'Lucky' made his dash to Paris."

Charles was contemplating an under-taking which required ready money, we said to him, "Son, we have some influential friends who would be glad to and you. Don't you want us to speak to them?" "I don't need that sort of thing," was the answer. "From childhood to manhood—self-reliant!"

It was merely the normal course of his nature to fly alone across a continent, then over a trackless ocean. (To be continued tomorrow.)

Want Radio Stations Shut Down to Stop Long Rain

COLUMBUS, May 26—Governor Donahay today was asked to use his influence to close down Ohio radio broadcasting stations "just to see if they are not causing the abnormal rainfall."

It was announced at the governor's office, that Ohio laws do not permit his interference with the government's radio network.

The letter was received from Sandusky, Ohio, and signed by M.

F. E. O. and C. L. Wilson. It read: "Will you please use your influence in having Ohio radio stations shut down for a week or two just to see if they are causing the abnormal rainfall."

"The only dry weather we had last year was when W. A. I. U. was silent."

"We can not get our corn planted."

400 EXTRA DRY

SHELL GASOLINE

Motorists ..

Now you can buy a superior gasoline at the regular price

A Shell
Yellow-red
Pump is Waiting to Serve You

The story of 400 "Extra Dry" is just this—Shell Gasoline has been greatly improved in quality, but the price to you remains unchanged.

400 "Extra Dry" takes its name from the 400° End Point specification to which it is refined. Gasoline produced to meet this rigid test is "extra dry" ... which means it is ALL gasoline ... free from those greasy parts which do not atomize freely. Any 100° end point gasoline is recognized in the petroleum industry to be of premium standard and heretofore has commanded a higher price.

Shell Gasoline is now a premium fuel in everything but price. It contains only the most volatile elements of the crude ... every drop vaporizes ... every particle is converted into power ... there are no impurities or heavy ends to pass by the pistons unburned and dilute the crankcase oil.

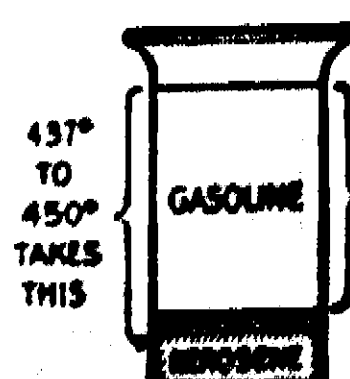

The quickest way to convince yourself that 400 "Extra Dry" Shell is no ordinary gasoline is to try it. Change to Shell today. Fill up the tank with this wonder fuel and put your car through its paces. You will speedily find that the merits of 400 "Extra Dry" Shell are more clearly apparent, more emphatic, on the road than anything we can say on paper.

Speed when the opportunity presents ... get-away that means minutes saved ... acceleration that thrills and exhilarates ... these are every-day experiences for the motorist who uses 400 "Extra Dry" Shell.

Shell Yellow-red Service Stations and Shell dealers at convenient locations are ready to supply you with this new Shell Gasoline at the regular price ... not one cent extra for the extra quality it contains or the extra service it will render

Why 400 "Extra Dry" SHELL is Superior

THE IMPROVED
SHELL WAY
Takes Only
the GASOLINE
from the CRUDE

The old way (437° to 450° End Point)—the distillation in general separates the gasoline from the rest of the crude oil and the rest of the gasoline is discarded.

The SHELL way (400° End Point)—the distillation separates only the gasoline from the rest of the crude oil and the rest of the gasoline is discarded.

ADVERTISING IS STRESSED BY CHICAGO MAN

Lou Harrington, National Field Secretary, Addresses Real Estate Operators

Advertising, not sporadic, but as continuous as breathing, will be the main stay of the real estate man of the future, Lou Harrington, held here-

day. The speaker, who imagines for a moment that it is necessary to advertise or to advertise only occasionally, might as well conduct his breathing on the same plan. He wouldn't do much better, the speaker said. More advertising is now carried on in this country than in any other. The place and in consequence more business is done. It was pointed out by Harrington.

In connection with real estate advertising, the speaker urged that the advertiser be more specific in his statements. He said over 120 facts are mentioned in a "house for sale" advertisement yet most of the advertisers use not over 10 or 15 and usually of two of those things should never be mentioned. Harrington, in outlining the purpose of the real estate boards, the speaker said, pointed to the opinion held for many years by the public, that a real estate board's chief function is simply to protect the public and to have an organized body where real estate men can hang together for mutual protection. The whole community have come to realize that the real estate board is organized for the protection of the public.

As concrete proof of this statement, the speaker pointed to the recent enactment in more than a dozen states of real estate license laws similar to that in force in Ohio, as an achievement of the real estate boards assisted by the national association. He also stated that through the efforts of the national association a broad educational program is being carried on in real estate boards.

M. C. A. and in more than 14 colleges and universities resulting in a general crop of highly specialized men trained in a service worthy of the profession.

Outlines Services. Mr. Harrington, in outlining the duty of a real estate board, the real estate board is going to perform its duty, has the obligation of seeing that it is seen that the board is an organized body as well as an organized body, and that it is organized to see that the opportunities and privileges of service along these with defined lines.

"First to the extent of making a better city in which to live, for example, American industrial development, parks, playgrounds, an air port, attractive railroad rights of way, etc. It therefore, naturally comes to pass that the real estate board should work harmoniously and hand-in-hand with the chamber of commerce, the city council, the women's clubs, the Y. M. C. A. and other organizations interested in better city."

Second to real estate as a commodity. People often buy everything except real estate and yet all other things rest upon real estate. An equitable basis of location scores people away from real estate. Fairly assessment methods should have the attention of every real estate board. "Own your home," says and model homes, a national home ownership. A knowledge of how to deal in real estate induces people to put their knowledge to use.

Third to their own real estate board. The establishment of classes in real estate practice, appraising, negotiating, true sales methods, real estate law and others, is not only desirable but positively necessary. If the real estate man is going to measure up to his opportunities and render expert service to the public has a right to expect him to do so.

Between 250 and 300 cities in the United States have policewomen.

BALLOON RACES ARRANGED FOR MEMORIAL DAY

All-Day Program Planned at Akron; Model Plane Contest Also On

Akron, May 27—Everything is in readiness for the start of the national balloon race from Akron Memorial Day.

An all-day program, starting at 9 a. m. when the 15 contesting balloons will be staked out on the field of operations at the Cleveland-Akron Speedway, has been arranged by officials of the Balloon Race Association. At 11 a. m. the balloons will be filled with gas. At the same time the Akron balloonists' 1927 model plane contest will be staged at the race track adjoining the speedway.

Other preliminaries include a display of American and international balloon race trophies and a Memorial Day concert by military bands.

The aerial program starts at 1:30 p. m. with a triple parachute drop from a Martin bombing plane. Stunt flying by visiting aviators and an airplane review will be seen for two and a half hours. More than 100 airships are expected to take part.

First at 4:30 p. m. The first balloon will take off at 4:30 p. m. to be followed by the other 14 at 10-minute intervals. Starting positions will not be made known until Friday, when the pilots will draw lots for places.

According to race association officials, the contest will be the greatest aeronautical exhibition ever staged in this country. There are more balloons in the race than have ever before been entered in a similar event. The pick of the nation's ballooning talent will be piloting the entries.

C. W. Soberling, president of the Balloon Race Association, will act as starting judge. Other judges will be Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, and Lieut.

Commander Charles H. Rosenthal, commander of the "Los Angeles." Arrangements have been made to handle a record-breaking crowd at the balloon field. Nearby roads will be patrolled by state militia.

FORMER MARION WORKER FILES $50,000 ACTION

Forest A. McDonald, 20, Sues Erie Railroad Co. for Alleged Damages

Forest A. McDonald, 20, formerly employed here as a telegraph operator by the Erie Railroad Co., filed suit for $50,000 damages against the company in federal court at Cleveland, yesterday, for alleged injuries in an accident which occurred April 19, 1924.

The petition states that McDonald was riding on a railroad speeder while being transferred from a station to Milltown, O., on the Erie and was injured when the speeder collided with an automobile at a road crossing.

His head was injured and nervous system impaired, causing partial loss of hearing, McDonald asserts. He charges that the accident was due to careless operation of the speeder.

The suit was filed for McDonald by J. Gugler, Galion attorney, the attorney being named as plaintiff in behalf of McDonald, due to the latter being a minor.

McDonald was a resident of Marion several years, coming here from his former home in Logan County. He left the Erie's employ here on Nov. 1, 1925. He is reported to be employed now in Columbus.

ATTEMPTED THEFT OF LINCOLN SEDAN FAILURE

Curtis & Co. Car Damaged During Getaway by Marauders

In their apparent haste to make a getaway, automobile thieves sometime during the night spoiled their own plans to steal a Lincoln sedan from the garage of C. E. Curtis & Co., at the rear of the Bixby building on E. Center.

The attempted theft was discovered by members of the company this morning when they went to the garage. The lock on the door of the building had been broken and a Cadillac sedan stood in the doorway half way in the alley while just back of the Cadillac stood the Lincoln sedan, the apparent object of the visit, with one door broken off.

It is thought the would-be thieves had driven the Cadillac into the alley and in their hurry to get the Lincoln out of the building, forgot to close the door of a horse and was broken off. Evidently becoming frightened at the noise, the intruders pushed the Cadillac part way into the garage and made their escape.

Police were notified of the case today.

STORY OF DISSENSION IN SEMINARY REVEALED

Whole Doctrinal Controversy Thrown Wide Open at Presbyterian Session

San Francisco, May 27—The whole doctrinal controversy of modernism versus fundamentalism was thrown wide open before the 123rd general assembly of the Presbyterian Church of America at its second day's session here today with the submission of two reports of special commissions, one of which has been conducting an investigation over the last two years.

A story of dissension in Princeton Theological Seminary between cliques among students, faculty and governing bodies was revealed in the report of the commission appointed last year to probe this situation.

Two important recommendations are made as follows:

1. Complete reorganization of governing powers of the institution by creation of a single board of control to replace the two existing boards of trustees and directors which have been at loggerheads over distribution of power.

2. That the general assembly recommend this reorganization to contain appointment of Dr. J. Gresham Machen to the chair of apologetics.

FIGHT ON FOR CONTROL OF PITTSBURGH COAL CO.

Common Stock Jumps Another Point as Market Opens; Two Corporations Interested

New York, May 27—Common stock of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., said to be the largest coal company in the world, jumped another point at the opening of the stock market today, putting the stock up 11 points higher than what it sold for on Wednesday.

Despite denials reports persisted that there is a tug fight for control of the company, participated in by the financial leaders of the country.

The current struggle for control of the company is according to the reports, between the United States Steel corporation and A. W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, representing one faction, and interests headed by Frank L. Taylor, president of the North American Coal Co. and backed by Morgan and the Van Sweringen brothers.

Change in ownership of the company would have a great influence on the lives of the miners and families in the coal regions of Pennsylvania. It is reported that no matter which group won control a settlement may be made with union miners. The Pittsburgh field has been regarded as the battleground of the 1927 coal strike in the central competitive field.

NEW VISION TEST

Recently-Perfected System Making Play Out of Work Demonstrated

Cleveland, May 27—A recently-perfected technique for testing the vision of children in school age, was demonstrated in Cleveland today in cooperation with the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness. Mrs. Jessie Ross Hoyer, staff secretary of the committee, had charge of the demonstration.

The technique involves the use of what is known as the "illiterate" chart in which a way that the letter becomes a funny little three-legged animal and the reading of the chart becomes a game in which the child shows which way the three-legged animal's legs point. This method has made it possible to measure with a fair degree of accuracy the vision of children, not only in the kindergarten stage, but as young as three years.

AGED VETERAN PLANS ANNUAL PILGRIMAGE

J. H. Buchanan To Place Wreath on Grave of Former Officer Sunday

Sunday afternoon J. H. Buchanan, leader of Civil War veterans, will make his seventh annual pilgrimage to Brush Ridge Cemetery where he will place a wreath on the grave of his former officer, Major S. N. Titus, under whom he served in the Eleventh Pennsylvania Cavalry, during the Civil War. The wreath will hold 38 flags representing the age of Major Titus.

Mr. Buchanan's early trips to the cemetery were made practically alone but in recent years he has been accompanied by relatives and friends of the late major and by other Civil War veterans. ### REMARKABLE HEALING OF SEVERE SKIN TROUBLE RECORDED

Had resisted various treatments for more than a year

San Francisco, Cal., May 12:—"I wish to write to you in regard to a very remarkable healing made by your Resinol Ointment. An acquaintance of mine had a severe case of skin irritation between the toes which caused deep cracks to form. This condition had existed for over a year and every known remedy had been tried without giving relief. Finally I persuaded my friend to use Resinol Ointment and the trouble was healed in two weeks. I hope this will be the means of helping others as many people seem to be suffering from this condition. I think your soap and ointment just wonderful and hope they will always be available for treating skin troubles." (Signed) Mrs. H. E. Mame and address on request. Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md. MARION'S fourth boxing show of the season will be staged tonight in Eagles' Temple, under the sponsorship of the Eagles. Irvin Grace of Columbus will meet Tommy Lane of Toledo, who will meet Tommy Lane of Toledo, who will meet Tommy Lane of Toledo.

The three main events are the only ones with which the majority of Marion fans are familiar and it is probable that a large number of local fans will turn out to see the new boys in action.

But it is significant to us that Ray Newton, that blonde young favorite from Mansfield, who has appeared here in every match so far, is not booked for Friday night.

Ray, a few weeks ago, battled to a draw with Irvin Grace in the main go. Both boys were pretty badly done up when the final bell came. Grace was swarmed with blood from head to foot and the claret was flowing freely from a razor slash above his right eye.

Newton was suffering greatly from the effect of the body blows received in the scrimmage. In fact, had the fight gone another round, the boys would have probably both toppled.

But, back to the subject of Ray, who visited his dressing room tonight a more after the fight and wearing a more discouraged-looking expression of young manhood in all our life. He was disheveled with himself and all the world, and it was then that he is only 18 years of age.

It was then that the blonde youth announced that he "guessed he would quit the game." We haven't heard of Newton climbing in a public ring since that time and we're just wondering if he really meant what he said after that last battle.

He is one of the best fighters to ever enter the arena of the fight game in Marion and that last match with Grace proved the Mansfield boy to be a real honest-to-goodness fighter. With odds against him and Grace getting the best of him, Newton stepped into action in the final rounds and punched his opponent effectively about the face and head—and drew a draw from the judges.

Yes, if Ray has quit the game for the time being, Marion fans will miss him. They have no great love for Grace and the gentleman named Lane probably will be the favorite here tonight.

THE high school recreational ball league came to a close last night, after a successful month of play under the direction of Dewey Bohrer, instructor at Harding High. It was the first time in the history of the Harding High that a seven-team recreational ball league had been organized and the favorable result points to another league next season.

Bacon Hurls No-Hit Game; Shovels Trim C., D. &amp; M.

Osgood to Protest Game With Erie Shops; Gardner Tap & Die Again Winner

Fairfield Defeats Huber, 6-1; Bacon Wins Own Game with C., D. & M. in First Inning, When He Knocks Out Home Run

WITH Bacon pitching a no-hit game and striking out 11 men, the Marion Steam Shovel Shovels last night shut out the C., D. & M. 2 to 0, in the greatest battle of the Industrial League so far this season. As a result of the win, the Steam Shovel crew takes the lead in the league with three victories and no defeats.

Second in line comes the Gardner Tap & Die Co. That outfit trimmed the Marion Packing Co. 3 to 0, last night, for the second win of the season. It has not yet lost a game, but has only participated in two games. Fairfield and Erie Shops were the other two winners. Fairfield took the measure of Huber to the tune of 6 to 1 in a game that will be protested by Osgood as the result of a wrong decision by the umpire late in the game.

Hit Umpire—In the seventh inning, with a man on base and two out, Baker of the good nine hit a hot liner through the pitcher's legs, striking the umpire with the ball. An Erie man picked up the sphere and threw the runner out at sphere. An argument ensued in which it developed that the umpire did not know whether or not the man was out. Neither manager knew the correct rule governing the play and no rule books were available. As a result, the man was called out by the umpire.

Upon investigating the matter after the contest was over, it was found that the rule read, "the base runner shall be entitled to a base, without being put out, if the ball, on a fair hit, strikes the umpire on fair ground." According to the law, the Osgood man was safe. Frank Thomas, manager of the Osgood team, will file a formal protest with the commission.

Home Run By Bacon—The Steam Shovel Shovels made the only two runs scored during the C., D. & M. game last night in the first frame. Bacon, slugged out a home run with Virden on base. The Shovels received only six hits but the home run did the necessary damage. Kochensberger was on the mound for the C., D. & M. and pitched a neat game. Gambol struck out 13 Huber men while the Fairfield outfit was scoring its first victory of the league season last night. Gibson and Arnold led the winners with the bat.

Gardner's Win—The Gardner Tap & Die Co., newcomer in the Industrial League, continued its winning rampage by trimming the Marion Packing Co. 3 to 0. Both teams received only six hits. Bartsch and Corbin were the Gardner batteries while Bungardner and Hudson held those positions with the losers. The Tap & Die company completed the contest without an error, in spite of the cold weather. The Marion Packing had one black mark checked against it.

Two hot scores were turned in to the Y. M. C. A.

Howitzer, Excavators, and Erie Switchmen Triumph In Initial League Series

Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, American Legion and Erie Office Are Respective Victims; Next Postponed Series Thursday Night

HOWITZER, Excavators, and Erie Switchmen were victorious in the first games of the season for the Association last night. Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, American Legion, and Erie Office were the respective victims.

After a three weeks' delay because of rain, the Association teams finally swung into action last night, in spite of the wintry blasts that swept across the diamonds and caused umpires to become grouchy.

Howitzer triumphed the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, 11 to 3, and gave promise of being the coming champions. They received 18 hits while Art Amick, pitching for the guardsmen, allowed 12 bingles. E. Gilmore was the Railway Clerks' hurler.

Excavators Win. The Excavators doubled the score on the Legion, winning 14 to 7. Mediam and Slagle were the winning batteries. The Legion scored two runs in the first frame but were unable to gain connect until the fifth inning, while their opponents traveled merrily along.

With Greenland on the mound, the Erie Switchmen last night trimmed the Erie Superintendents Office, 4 to 2, on the Steam Shovel grounds.

The next series of postponed games in the Association will take place next Thursday night. The regular scheduled contests will be played Monday night.

KIWANIS CLUB HOST TO CIVIL WAR VETERANS

Members of Cooper Post, G. A. R., Dine with Civic Organization

Members of the Marion Kiwanis Club were honored yesterday by having as their guests at luncheon at Hotel Harding, 10 veterans of the Civil War who are members of Cooper Post, G. A. R. An interesting and unusual touch was given the program by Col. G. H. Christian, who, as each soldier guest was introduced by Charles Wiley, commander of the post, gave a brief history of the part each played in the war. Each guest responded with a few words and W. G. Harding, chairman of the post sang "Rally Around the Flag" as a contribution to the program. The

BEHIND THE SCREEN

Just a few years ago Virginia Lee Corbin appeared on the screen as a child actress. But since she is grown up now, First National Pictures are going to give her parts suitable for her youthful charm and personality, thus lifting her into the ranks of grown up actresses.

It does seem that virtually everything that can possibly be said has been said on the subject of the movie. The happy ending, in particular, has been attacked from every possible angle but to no avail.

Here in America movies with happy endings "in the approval of the public. Producers know this and give the people what they want, even if artistic value is sacrificed some time. Motion pictures are costly, and putting out pictures that may be dismissed by the public would lead to great financial losses.

Upon scrutinizing the characteristic American desire for happy endings, we find that it has a substantial background. Americans, on the whole, refuse to accept reality as a basic theme for their lives. Their outlook, their philosophy or art. By nature they are optimistic, happy-go-lucky, and expect better things in the end.

Every day we hear of some great stroke of luck crossing some one's path that seems like a fairy tale. The poor working girl occasionally catches a millionaire. The farmer sometimes strikes oil. The ambitious office boy not so infrequently becomes head of a big corporation. With them, always "the best is yet to come."

But we find that it is different with most movies made in Europe. Invariably the end is tragic.

The Russians, for instance, have a passion to interpret life in its most pathetic, often grim reality, and bring to light all its hidden meanings, leaving their soul honestly, shamelessly, leaving but a vague promise of redemption in "Romance."

Often, the result is rather disquieting to the thinking, most certainly never amusing to the pleasure seeking.

Anna Q. Nilsson, having just completed "Lonesome Ladies," is to play the lead in "Honor and the Woman," with J. Warren Kerrigan supporting.

Marceline Day will have the female lead opposite Ramon Novarro in a picture called "Romance."

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION BELIEVED CAUSE OF FIRE

Spontaneous combustion in a paint bucket filled with rags and sawdust is thought to have been responsible for a blaze in a shed at the rear of 321 S.
Prospect-st., yesterday afternoon. The house, the property of Harry A. Ammann, is being remodeled. The shed was partly destroyed and paint on the rear of the house scorched by the blaze.
The fire was put out by firemen from the central station with small loss.

Women compose about 25 per cent of the total membership of the Russian trade unions.

OVERHEATED STOVE PIPE CAUSES $400 DAMAGE

Firemen Delayed Reaching
Huron-st Home at Two Railroad Crossings

An overheated stove pipe was responsible for a $400 fire at the home of Paul Pernard at the rear of Huron-st.
early last night. Pernard, who lives alone in a two-room house, had built a fire in a heating stove and gone to visit one of the neighbors while his house was getting warm. A few minutes later he was notified by children of the neighborhood that his house was on fire.

The stovepipe had set fire to a wooden partition near the chimney. Departments from Central and No. 2 stations responded to a call sent in by neighbors. Nearly 1,200 feet of hose were laid by the men from No. 2 station before the fire could be reached.
The department from the central station was delayed for nearly 10 minutes by freight trains at both the Pennsylvania and Hocking Valley crossings on
W. Center-st.

CLEAN LAMP SHADES
A new use has been found for the little pastry brush. Buy a new one and use it for a duster for silk lamp shades.
It is much easier to reach in the folds of silk than with the larger brushes which are sold for that purpose.

The New Book -o-

BY FRANCES JENNINGS

SPARKLING with drama and numerous emotional crises when excitement is intense, is the new Alaska novel, "The Deadfall," by Edson Marshall, a truly "out-of-doors" man who has gained material for his vivid experiences as hunter, trapper and explorer.

Marshall's stories are written with a clarity and precision unusual in the writer of fiction intended solely to satisfy popular appeal. His books are gripping with romance and adventure, but acceptable to the practical mind because of their plausibility. Never does Marshall sacrifice reality in adding to the dramatic appeal of his tale.

Marshall is a genuine lover of nature, as his book, based on the attempt of several of his characters to preserve the wild life of the north-west, will show.

The second of "The Deadfall" is the extreme eastern section of Alaska, the Unalak country, home of the famous Kadiak bear, a huge creature with enormous limbs and an unusually large head, the home too of the lesser, otter, fox and rabbit—small animals dependent on the mercy of man.

JOHN FRAZER, hero of the book, willfully spends all of his time in that remote country, attempting to protect small animals by enforcing the game laws of the country, and also to perfect his invention of a trap, which should gas and instantly kill any small animal caught in it. He is waiting for his invention to be patented when into his country come Fred and Alice Camden, manufacturers of a torturing steel trap, and Crocker, who manages their interests and is in love with Alice.

When Crocker has killed more than the allowed amount of game, he is duly questioned by Frazer, and, learning of Frazer's rival invention, attempts to withhold his patent. Frazer, a man not to be trifled with, imprisons the three in his hut, and it is while there that pretty Alice Camden falls in love with him and twice saves him from a backward gang, led by a Chinaman and a note. He in turn rescues her, when, in her attempt to escape, she falls into one of her own make of steel traps and is the mercy of a Kadiak bear.

Fred Camden finds himself in those wilds—proves himself a man. Crocker reveals his cowardice. Alice finds the love she loves and Frazer is successful, with Alice's aid, in wiping out the mo-hoing two-faced gang led by the mute as well as of saving his patent. The Camdens, of course, adopt his more merciful method of trapping after Alice's hideous experience in a bear trap.

The book is a splendid argument in favor of conservation of animal life—except that Frazer, the hero of the book, perhaps carries his theory beyond the reader's endurance when he advocates the wiping out of cats, destroyers of birdlife.

"The Deadfall" promises an exciting evening, quite as exiting in fact as those never-to-be-forgotten days when the Zone Grey stories of the wild west were published, one right after another.

The book was published by the Compendium Book Corporation April 2. Marshall is also the author of "The Land of Forgotten Men," "Child of the Wild," and "The Isle of Rebirth."

REDGWICK BOOK HEADS LIST

"The Old Countess" by Anne Douglas Sedgwick heads the list of best sellers last week with Edith Wharton's new novel, "Twilight Sleep," second. The list also includes "Marching On" by James Boyd, "Mother Knows Best" by Edna Ferber, "Brother Saul" by Don Byrne, "You Are a Man in Love" by Michael Arlen, "Revolt in the Desert" by T. E. Lawrence, "Napoleon" by Emil Ludwig, and "Everything and Anything" by Dorothy Aldis.

"Elmer Gantry" by Sinclair Lewis, for the last few weeks a "best seller" was not included in last week's list.

NEW BIOGRAPHY OF "AL" SMITH

A biography and critical study of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York is being written by Norman Hapgood and Henry Moskowitz, according to special announcement made by Harcourt, Brace & Co., who will publish the book in the autumn. It will be entitled "Up From the City Streets: Alfred E. Smith, a Study in Contemporary Politics."

WILSON'S LIFE STORY SOON PUBLISHED

Woodrow Wilson's own story of his life told through private letters and papers hitherto unpublished, will be published in eight weeks after a serial run in a number of newspapers. The book will be known as "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" and, although largely autobiographical, will include revelations of history and diplomacy and a number of interesting anecdotes.

PRIVATE LIFE OF CLEOPATRA

Affording amusing diversion is "Cleopatra's Private Diary" by Henry Thomas, a recently published novel in which the private life of one of the world's earliest flappers is "revealed" for the first time. The famous vamp's "love affairs" with men of Caesar's time, her struggle for supremacy over other would-be vamps is all told in a brilliantly, cleverly written novel.

MOVIE RIGHT OF "HULA" ARE SOLD

Movie rights of "Hula," the Hawaiian novel by Arminia Von Tempel (Stokes) have just been sold to the Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation. "Hula" is a novel filled with swift action, the clatter of horses' hoofs, cutthroating, and the pleasures of the reckless ranchers, and furnishes good material for the silver sheet. Miss Von Tempel is now in the Islands completing her second novel, "Queen of the Dust," which promises to be as rich in local color as the first.

PATRI BOOK WINS MEDAL

Angelo Patri's "The Problems of Childhood" was awarded the "Children's" medal by children, the Magazine for Parents, the first annual medal for the best book for parents by an American author.

HENRY HOLT & CO. OFFERS NEW BOOKS

"The Wreck of the Redwing" by Beatrice Grimshaw, "Calamity Jane" by Thucena Altman, and Alfred Noyes' latest book, "New Legends and American Impressions" are the new books being emphasized this spring by Henry Holt & Co.

FREEMAN TILDEN WRITES NEW BOOK

Freeman Tilden has just written a new novel, "Wild Money," published by Doubleday, Page and Co. Mr. Tilden calls the "happy ending" a "reflection of a superlativity and dishonesty in literature, out from which we are slaggering." "Wild Money" has a characteristic ending.

Washington, May 27.—The federal trade commission today requested Attorney General Clegg to dismiss the suits instituted in 1920 against the Bethlehem Steel Co. and the Republic Iron & Steel Co. for writs of mandamus to compel these companies to file certain special monthly reports which the commission had demanded to obtain information in an investigation into the then existing high cost of living.

Further prosecution of the suits has been stopped by the injunction issued in the Chaire Furnace case recently decided by the supreme court.

WOULD ESTABLISH BANKS THROUGH ENTIRE WORLD

Los Angeles Banker Believes Institutions Would Aid U. S. Business

Detroit, Mich., May 27.—As a means of stimulating this country's foreign business, J. H. Kerr, vice president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles, today recommended that federal reserve banks establish branches at strategic points throughout the world, using for this purpose the surplus capital they now carry unemployed.

Kerr was one of the speakers at various group sessions held by the National Foreign Trade Convention.

Commercial banking has been highly developed in the United States he pointed out.

"But," he added, "it is also a fact that, with few exceptions, this country is sadly deficient in financial institutions that can become factors in foreign countries in the pioneer development of foreign commerce and its subsequent maintenance."

Only 11 American banks, practically all located in New York, are directly represented abroad, a recent investigation showed, he said.

Gilbert H. Montague, member of the New York bar, addressing another group, said that conditions abroad may soon develop that may make it desirable for American exporters to abandon their present individualistic attitude, and to come to an agreement with one another regarding prices to be charged or orders to be allotted in foreign markets.
